

U.S. ARMY SUSTAINMENT COMMAND

ARMY FIELD SUPPORT BATTALION-KOREA

AFSBn-Korea serves as the Army Materiel Command's (AMC) "Face to the Warfighter" for 2ID, USAG Yongsan-Casey and USAG Humphreys. Its mission includes assisting with sustaining the highest operational equipment readiness rates, new equipment and materiel fielding and training, integration of Life Cycle Management Commands (LCMCs); and the integration of acquisition, logistics, and technology to support Soldier requirements.

Headquartered at Camp Humphreys, Pyeongtaek, South Korea, the AFSBn-Korea is a mission-focused and modular unit organized to project logistics power forward to every element of our expeditionary Army. AFSBn-Korea is a subordinate element of the 403d AFSB, headquartered at Camp Henry, Daegu, South Korea. The AFSBn-Korea focuses on operational readiness of US Army units operating on the Korean peninsula and Japan.

AFSBn-Korea team is the sole field level Headquarters where all AMC LCMCs and Army Sustainment Command (ASC) representatives operate as a single entity. The AMC LCMCs are Aviation and Missile Command (AMCOM), Communications and Electronics Command (CECOM), Joint Munitions Command (JMC) and Tank-Automotive and Armaments Command (TACOM). Each LCMC is represented by Logistics Assistance Representatives (LARs) embedded within AFSBn-Korea. The LAR credo of "Teach, Coach, Mentor and Train" has a direct impact on preparedness for contingency and wartime operations. Additionally, ASC employees assist supported units by providing linkage to strategic supply and maintenance systems.

AFSBn-Korea is responsible for the Installation Supply, Maintenance, and Transportation missions for USAG Yongsan-Casey and USAG Humphreys. Maintenance functions include maintaining AMC's non-tactical vehicles along with Garrison-owned tactical equipment. Supply functions include Central Issue Facility, Food Service/Supply Subsistence Management Office, Hazardous Materiel Control Point, and Installation Property Book Office. Transportation functions include, Transportation Motor Pool, Shuttle Bus mission, Personal Property Processing Office, Personal Property Shipping Office, Commercial Travel Office, and the Vehicle Processing Center.

AFSBn-Korea's history dates to the early 1980s with the formal establishment of the Logistics Assistance Office for 2d Infantry Division (LAO-2ID) at Camp Casey. LAO-2ID provided support to the 2ID in all areas of logistics, maintenance, readiness, and Warfighter support. In 1995, LAO-2ID was renamed the Logistics Support Element-2nd Infantry Division (LSE-2ID), and placed under the control of Army Field Support Brigade-Far East.

As ASC reorganized to a modular concept in 2000, the LAO-2ID was assigned responsibility for all LARs within the 2ID footprint. This enabled LAO-2ID's direct influence and authority over support in areas such as New Equipment Training (NET) and New Equipment Fielding (NEF). This teaming of ASC and AMC LCMCs marked the initial partnering of all AMC Enterprise partners in a forward area - a situation present in today's AFSBn-Korea organization.

In June 2009, the unit was re-designated as AFSBn-2ID under the 403d Army Field Support Brigade, to ensure compliance with ASC's most current force structure and to streamline support provided to the 2ID.

In May 2011, the unit was re-designated as AFSBn-Korea based on the unit's geographical location.

In March 2015, AFSBn-Korea merged with Logistics Readiness Center (LRC) Red Cloud establishing a single face to the field. This merger ended in 2016 with both AFSBn-Korea and LRC Casey returning to the role as separate reporting elements of the 403d AFSB.

In 2018 AFSBn-Korea moved to Camp Humphreys and merged with LRC Humphreys. Once the Army changed its focus to Large Scale Combat Operations, AFSBn-Korea established its Division Logistics Support Element (DLSE) to synchronize LAR support and assist 2ID with enterprise level matters. In April 2023 AFSBn-Korea absorbed LRC North which consolidated installation logistics in Areas I thru III under a single Battalion HQ.

AFSBn-Korea continues its support of Army units in Korea and Japan during Armistice and ensuring preparedness for war.
